Your winnings are in the post!

Well well well.... Look what the cat dragged back in again and gave a good beating to, and I don't mean Kurt Zoumer. Nick your winnings are in the post. It's nice to play well. Just gives you that feeling of knowing you can do it. That one round brings you back for another few more rounds and makes you forget all the other bad rounds prior to it. You just need that one little glimmer of a round to keep you interested as well as it being enjoyable.

With two minor blemishes one on the 3rd and one the 9th, Nick's round of 34 points (16 on front and 18 on back) sees him top the day by two clear points. The back 9 nearly fell away from him but he held it together to post 34 points. On the way round he gives the defending matchplay champion a spanking of 5 & 3 too.

Joint second on 32 points sees three people tied. Tony, Rob and me. Three great rounds by all and all three cards read slightly different in scores and how each one of us scored on each hole. That's the beauty of golf.

Onto the course. Firstly, I had to change my buggy as the one we were given was a death trap. Breaking distance was 400 yards I think. Once that was replaced, despite all the hassle I had prior to the day with regards booking it and the payments required, I thought the course was a nice course. Nothing that stood out for me though to say "remember that hole? Would love to play that again!". I also found the greens a little slow too, but they were consistent. Some nice holes but I can't remember much of it as I was coughing my guts out. This has now been diagnosed as pneumonia. Fantastic. I am currently on my second course of antibiotics and an inhaler. Cause? The bloody air conditioning unit in Pakistan. Still alive though to beat Simon in the matchplay.

Other notable performance and needs highlighting are the two at the bottom. Sean and Rob. At the bottom and had a humdinger of a match too. Rob was never down in the match but every time he tried to pull away Sean came back. Don't get me wrong. It sounds like a they played great golf. Oh no. It wasn't a case of who wanted it, it was who didn't want it!

The Players is not far away now so can I please ask you all to pay the remaining balance now before I get angry and turn green. Those of you that have already paid after my initial email reminder thank you. The rest of you need to pull our finger out and make payment now please.

The next event is at Erewash Golf Club on 19th June 2022. Once again another new course for us. Please get your monies in to me asap.

I look forward to seeing you all at the next event. Please stay safe and healthy.

GOLF REDEMPTION

Redemption in golf comes when a golfer returns to glory after serious trauma and incident has impacted his or her golf career.

Redemption is not simply coming back and returning to form after a slump. Redemption is about overcoming a life-altering incident.

These redemption stories are often inspiring to read about, but it's more about the determination of an individual to not let the circumstances of illness, injury or prejudice stop them.

Lee Trevino

In the late 1960s and early 1970s, Lee Trevino was one of the most successful and colourful characters on the golf tour. Trevino would enthral the press with his stories and then go out and hold his own with Jack Nicklaus and the other great golfers of the day.

However, that changed in 1975. Trevino was playing in the Western Open when he was struck by lightning.

He suffered back and leg injuries and endured multiple surgeries. Despite the interventions, he was permanently weakened by the injuries.

However, he did not quit. He continued to play on the tour, and he used touch and accuracy to overcome his loss of power. He became a master shotmaker and won eight more times on the tour after the lightning strike.
